PURPOSE OF THE BILL

The purpose of H. Res. 555 is to request the President and direct the Secretary of the Interior to transmit, respectively, certain documents and other information to the House of Representatives relating to the executive order on the review of designations under the Antiquities Act.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

H. Res. 555 is a resolution of inquiry that requests the President and directs the Secretary of the Interior to transmit to the House of Representatives, not later than 14 days after the adoption of the resolution by the full House, copies of every document, map, survey, report, record, memorandum, call log, correspondence (electronic and otherwise), and other communication or any portion of any such communication, that refers or relates to the executive order on the review of designations under the Antiquities Act (Executive Order 13792, April 26, 2017), including: (1) documents and communications relating to the Secretary of the Interior's review of all Presidential designations or expansions of designations under the Antiquities Act made since January 1, 1996, as described in the executive order; (2) all documents and communications relating to the Secretary of the Interior's review of all Presidential designations where the Secretary determined that the designation or expansion was made without adequate public outreach and coordination with relevant stakeholders, as described in the executive order; (3) all documents and communications relating to the interim and final reports to the President, including any recommendations for Presidential actions, legislative proposals, or other actions recommended by the Secretary of the Interior to carry out the policy set forth in section 1 of the executive order; and (4) any meeting or communication that occurred between Secretary Ryan Zinke and President Trump, or their representatives, relating to the recommendations or reports required by the executive order.

Under clause 7 of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee must act on such a resolution within 14 legislative days of its introduction or a privileged motion to discharge the Committee will be in order in the House of Representatives.

Under the rules and precedents of the House, a resolution of inquiry is one method used by the House to obtain information from the executive branch. According to volume 7, chapter 24, section 8 of Deschler's Procedure, it is a "simple resolution making a direct request or demand of the President or the head of an executive department to furnish the House of Representatives with specific factual information in the possession of the executive branch." The rules of the House of Representatives contain no specific provision for enforcing resolutions of inquiry.¹

However, the Committee estimates that this resolution of inquiry would not result in any significant costs. In addition, the Committee does not believe it the resolution would result in new or increased budget authority, entitlement authority or tax expenditures or revenues. Finally, the Committee has not received an estimate of federal mandates prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act, but the Committee believes that no federal mandates are included in this resolution.

As required by clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII, the general performance goal or objective of this bill is to request the President and direct the Secretary of the Interior to transmit, respectively, certain documents and other information to the House of Representatives relating to the executive order on the review of designations under the Antiquities Act.

DISSENTING VIEWS

For months, Committee Democrats have sought information regarding reports associated with executive order 13792—Presidents Trump’s sweeping review of 27 national monuments created since 1996 under the Antiquities Act. Letters and requests for information have gone unanswered.

Interior Secretary Zinke toured several of the listed monuments, but consistently failed to provide a detailed agenda of his tours, including the stakeholders with whom he met. This lack of transparency is hypocritical and troubling; there is no reason for the White House or the Department to keep the report or its methodology secret.

Secretary Zinke has failed to deliver on his promise of an “open review process” by not providing more information about his agenda, analysis, and full scope of findings from his national monument tours and meetings. During the 60-day comment period, more than 2.8 million responses were submitted and revealed that a large majority of Americans are supportive of maintaining or expanding current national monument boundaries. The Secretary has indicated he plans to ignore those comments so the public deserves to know what information he does plan to rely on.

Due to the lack of information and transparency, Ranking Member Grijalva, along with 25 original cosponsors, introduced the resolution of inquiry (ROI)—H. Res. 555 requesting the release of all administration supporting documents, reports, maps, surveys, communications, and correspondence relating to the president’s executive order.

At markup, Committee Democrats filed amendments to expand the scope of the ROI, seeking even more detailed information about the Secretary’s travel and meeting schedule. As the review seeks to shrink several national monuments that protect Native American sacred sites, Indian, Insular and Alaska Native Affairs Subcommittee Ranking Member Torres offered an amendment to request information about the administration’s engagement with tribal governments during the course of the review.

Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee Ranking Member McEachin offered an amendment to request information about meetings with diverse constituencies, including representatives of the LGBTQ and other minority communities. Energy and Mineral Resources Ranking Member Lowenthal offered an amendment to request information about any meetings with energy and mining companies.

In light of recent reports about potential illegal travel by the Secretary, Representative Napolitano offered an amendment seeking further information about travel costs associated with the review. Reports of the Trump administration’s disregard for ethics guidelines for former lobbyists working in the federal government led Representative Gallego to offer an amendment seeking information about ethics waivers for Department of the Interior employees working on the review. Lastly, given the fact that national monuments help drive economic growth in local communities by increasing local tourism and outdoor recreation, Representative Gomez introduced an amendment seeking any economic analysis used to develop the report.

All of the amendments were incorporated into the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Chairman Bishop, which was supported by every Member of the Committee.

However, instead of taking this request for transparency seriously, Committee Republicans ultimately chose to order the ROI reported unfavorably.

Whether this resolution comes before the full House for consideration is now completely in the hands of Committee Republicans who control the measure. Committee Republicans should demand transparency from the Trump administration as vociferously and relentlessly as they did from the Obama administration.
